WHITE MAN MURDERED
AND THROWN IN WELLBODY IDENTIFIED AS THAT OF WILLIE RANDALL, OF AUGUSTA.

(Sylvania Telephone.)
Lying in an old well about two miles north of Sylvania, where it had been thrown in the silent hours of the night by the hands of those who murdered him, the body of an unknown white man was discovered Wednesday morning by Henry Kemp, a negro man who was working in the woods near by.

Sheriff C. H. Scott was immediately notified by the negro, and went at once with a party to the scene. The body was drawn out, and it was found that the man had been murdered—his skull being crushed in as by some heavy blow, and in two holes being found in the side of his head as if they might have been bullet wounds.

The murdered man was without clothes, except for a pair of drawers, and was probably thrown into the well last Friday night, according to the statement of Henry Kemp. The well is on the old Jim Mock place on the Jacksonville road, about three hundred yards from the highway in a field. Kemp, who was working around there every day and got water from the well, says that Friday morning when he went there he noticed the track of an automobile that had come in here during the night and had gone out. As far as he could judge the car seemed to have come in from the direction of Sylvania and went out the same way. This was unusual for a car to come in the field, but he thought nothing of it until he discovered the body when it had risen to the surface Wednesday. There is no one living on the place, the residence having been burned down some time ago.

Coroner H. R. Kemp went up to the scene with a jury and held an inquest, but there was nothing to indicate who committed the crime. Sheriff Scott brought the body to Sylvania and it was held here until yesterday, when it was identified through reading a description of the man in the paper, by Mrs. Vandiver, of Augusta, as her nephew, Willie Randall, who disappeared from that city last Thursday night and had not been heard of since.

Mr. J. E. Smith, a friend of the murdered man, Mr. Chesapeake, a relative, and the undertaker, came down in cars from Augusta yesterday afternoon, and identified the body as that of Randall as soon as they saw the face. He was further identified by the initials W. R. tattooed into his arm, and by a ring that he had on his finger. The body was carried to Augusta this morning, and will be interred there today.

No clue as to the murderers has yet been discovered. The last seen of the young man Randall who was about twenty-two years of age, was last Thursday night between ten and eleven o'clock in Augusta. He was a chauffeur and ran a Ford car of his aunt's for hire. Thursday night a negro boy, who was chauffeur on another hack car and with whom he sometimes worked on trips, told him that he had a trip for both himself and the negro boy to the Statesboro church for a party. The boy, to whom they had given a sandwich for lunch when they left him, never returned, and came back to Augusta, where he fell on the streets unconscious and had to be carried to the hospital. It is supposed that he was poisoned from eating the sandwich. He has now recovered, however, and could identify the men in the party.

The last seen of the party who came off with Randall in the car was at the Planters Hotel in Augusta, where the men had registered, one of them as Mr. Jenkins, of Millen. They are supposed to have left there between ten and twelve o'clock Thursday night, and no trace of the car or the murderers has been found since. Randall, it is stated, had no money with him, and no motive has yet been found for the crime. The only surmise is that the men wanted to take the car away and killed the young driver to get him out of the way.

POTASH
IN FERTILIZERS

Germany has a world monopoly on commercial potash and the European War has cut off America's supply.

While the Southern Farmers cannot get Potash in sufficient supply for the 1916 Cotton and Corn crops there is more Potash in than in other sources of ammonia. Cotton Seed Meal in your fertilizer will do more to save the farmers from a crop failure this season than any other material.

Have you calculated the value of the Potash content of Cotton Seed Meal? Do you buy your ammoniate material without giving proper consideration to Cotton Seed Meal and its Potash value.

Cotton Seed Meal contains about 2% actual potash (K<sub>2</sub>O) and 2 1/4% actual phosphoric acid, besides from 7 1/2% to 8% ammonia.

Mixed with 16% acid phosphate it will insure a reasonably full crop for 1916.

True Story of a Man Whose Life Was Changed by a Dime

(Susan Hubbard Martin, in the Christian Standard.)

He was a man, morose and sullen, with no respect for things holy or divine. He used bad language, he went to questionable places, he avoided the church. His wife, the one person he had really loved, was dead; his best friend had wronged him in a business deal. These two troubles had swallowed up what little seeming good there was in him. His thoughts were even bitter, and as he viewed life, as a conductor on a street railway system, he told himself that there was nothing good in the world. Every one was trying to get the best of his fellow-man, life was a mad rush for the dollar, and there was no real religion anywhere. He walked home after his last run, with eyes that saw no divinity in the jeweled splendor of the moon.

Day by day he grew sterner, more sad, with less faith in humankind. He saw people quarreling with him over trifles, evading carfare, if it were possible—a falling down and falling short on every side. One evening, just at dusk, a sweet-faced little woman, very plainly dressed, boarded the car at one of the suburban stations. "She was not young, for about the mild eyes were little fine lines, and the beautiful hair was touched with white. After her came a large party of tourists, noisy and good-natured. In the laughter and confusion of adjusting boxes and packages, the sweet-faced little woman in the plain suit sat unnoticed. When the car reached its destination, she was the last one to get off. As she came out, she laid a dime in the hand of the sullen, sad-faced man who stood there by his car.

"My fare," she explained, gently. "In the confusion of that party of young people you overlooked it." The grim-faced man stared at the dime and then back at the sweet and gentle face. "You could have kept that dime," he said, gruffly. She smiled.

"Oh, no, I could not," was her reply. "It did not belong to me. Tomorrow I am going to teach my Sunday-school class. How could I have faced those boys and girls—how could I emphasize the beauty of a Christian life—if I had fallen so short myself that I could keep a dime that was not mine?" So you see, she said still gently, "there are some things Christian people can not afford to do. Cheating a railroad company of its rightful dues is one of them. Whether it be a dime or a hundred dollars, the principle is the same. The stern-faced man looked at the little dime again, but he did not speak. In silence he helped her off the car, and she was soon lost to view in the gathering darkness, but the incident did not stop there.

The first tiny ray of light had penetrated his stubborn heart, the first good seed had been sown. He had said there were no Christian people in the world. He had been wrong. That little, sweet-faced woman with the whitening hair and something he had said did not exist. If she had not, she would never have given him that dime. He looked up at the sparkling little stars that night, and for the first time he felt that he was a man. "I have come to see that woman's religion," he cried, joyfully. "Hope for you! Jesus Christ, came into the world to save sinners!" And they knelt down together.

A week later, at the close of the sermon, a tall, broad-shouldered man walked forward. The minister met him.

"I've come," said the man, brokenly, "to confess him before all men."

"Praise the Lord," said the minister, clasping his hand.

CAT CAUSED MUCH TROUBLE

Family Pet Has Been Formally Cautioned that "The Cave" is Not Public Property.

Out in Woodruff place a number of small boys have banded together and done what most boys have done if they were real-for-fore boys—built a cave, says the Indianapolis News. Approaching this cave is a long underground tunnel about two feet square. What there is in this tunnel in the way of side chambers and the like, the fathers and mothers of the boys will know, but at the inside end of the tunnel is the den, about five feet square, built in a side hill and as dark as the most cavernous depths of a Wyandotte cave.

One of the youngsters belonging to the band of cave dwellers hurried home from school the other afternoon, donned his cave outfit, and made for the tunnel. Crawling in flat on the ground, he made his way toward the den. Arriving there, he heard a scrambling noise just ahead of him, but when he looked up in the darkness, his teeth chattered with fright. He couldn't back away, he was too frightened to go forward, and there was no chance of escape at either side. The fiery spots became active and the boy became panicky.

Just what happened in there the cat will never know, but when the cat—it was the family cat—came out of the tunnel it was going some. No cat ever moved faster, and it did not stop until it had reached a barn three miles away.

And the boy—when he emerged his face was as white as the arctic snow and he was moving rapidly for the house, when he related the story of how he captured six Germans singlehanded, he took both hands off the wheel to tell about it. It would have made Barney Oldfield's hair permanently pompadour.

ONE SET OF BRAINS ENOUGH

Clever Man Makes Mistake When He Takes to Wife a Clever Woman, Says Writer.

The wife of one of our most celebrated literary men said the other evening that a talented man should always choose a wife with nothing further than domestic accomplishments. It is a great mistake for brainy people to marry brains," said she decisively, according to London Tit-Bits, and, happily, few of them do it. Put two geniuses together in matrimony, and you have put two cats in a bag; nervous, fretful, irresponsible creatures, with no patience and less common sense who will always worry each other and tugging in opposite directions at the matrimonial chain. If they are both talented in the same line they will not say the least, be the expression of different ideas; but if they have separate abilities, there will be pretty often a jangle about which one is the more important.

Who is clever man? Is a clever man, a sensible man, who will forget his vagaries in remembering his brilliancy and remain a constant shield between his sensitiveness and disagreeable things; something, in fact, like one of those cushions that sailors put down on the side of the vessel to keep it from jerking too roughly against the dock. Look at me, for instance; I never wrote a word for publication, painted a picture, composed music, or did anything of the sort in my life. But I make my husband just the sort of wife he needs."

Gets His Soup at Sea.
Because he is bound for London, where it is impossible to secure a supply of the special seaweed out of which a soup is made that is especially favored by his countrymen, Captain Takai of the Japanese steamer Kenkon Maru No. 8, appealed to the customs officials, the Philadelphia Record says.

A recent Captain Haral of the steamer Senju Maru, also Japanese, was given permission to transfer to Captain Takai a portion of his supply of the delectable dainty without which the voyage would be a dismal one for him and his crew. Captain Haral is homeward bound and can soon replenish his stock.

The seaweed in question is found only in the Orient, and it contains a gelatinous substance which thickens the soup, and has a peculiar appeal to the oriental palate. In fact, the Japanese sailor claims there is nothing else so good in the soup-making line. It is found by fishermen at the bottom of the sea and washed and dried. It finds ready sale in China and Japan.

By a Lake in Winter.
The deep sense of peace which fills the woods at midwinter is nowhere expressed more fully than where a sylvan lake or pool reflects with calm surface the grayness of the patient sky.

Strained by the autumn scourgings of the hills, and the decay of summer leaves, the water is rarely clear and bright as when it mirrors the clearer heavens of spring and summer.

It gleams to the blinding light that strikes between denser masses of cloud into a mist of yellowish suffusion from the raincoated cliff, or in a strange jade-green opaqueness. Where the naked trees upon the margin of the lake project the whole length of their reflected uprisings into the water, they present an impression of enormous columnar height, such as can never be equaled after the leaves of the summer and the substance to the lines of their upper boughs.

Poisoning by Aeroplane Varnish.
The enormously increased production of aeroplanes during the war leads point to a warning regarding the varnish employed on them. The most important symptom was jaundice due to decomposition of the blood. On investigation the cause was found to be poisoning by tetrachlorethane, the only solvent known for the highly combustible acetylethylene. These accidents led to an order forbidding the use of solvents containing a high percentage of tetrachlorethane—Scientific American.

PARADISE FOR "JOY RIDERS"

Work of Army Chauffeurs Would Make Oldfield's Hair Permanently Pompadour.

From St. Die to Le Rudin is in the neighborhood of thirty miles, and we did it in something less than thirty minutes, writes E. Alexander Powell in Scribner's Magazine. We went so fast that the telephone poles looked like the things in a picture frame, and we took the corners on two wheels so as to save rubber.

Of one thing I am quite certain—if I am killed in this war, it is not going to be by a shell or a bullet; it is going to be in a military motor car. No cars save military ones are permitted on the roads in the zone of operations, and for the military cars no speed limit exists. As a result the drivers tear through the country as though they were in the Vanderbilt cup race. Sometimes, of course, a wheel comes off, or they meet another vehicle when going around a corner at full speed—and the next morning there is a military funeral.

To be a driver of a military car in the zone of operations is the joyrider's dream come true. The soldier who drove my car steered with one hand because he had to use the other to illustrate the stories of his exploits in the trenches. Despite the fact that we were on a mountain road, one side of which dropped away into nothingness, when he related the story of how he captured six Germans singlehanded, he took both hands off the wheel to tell about it. It would have made Barney Oldfield's hair permanently pompadour.

SEEMED LIKE HOME TO BIRD

Canary Finally Successful in Breaking Into Jail, and May Serve a Life Term.

Having been born in a prison cage, it was only natural that a canary, regretting the breaking of home ties at a moment when the door was left open, should pause in his recalcitrant career when he saw the hundreds of barred windows of the Tombs prison, remarks the New York Herald. He always had associated bars with a well-fortified and stout.

This runaway canary had been trying for several days to break into jail, mistaking it probably for a bird cage—a jail bird cage. A "down and outer" at the prison stand under the Tombs wall caught the hungry and remorseful bird. John Crowley, a turnkey, who had watched the little fellow for days, gave the canary five cents for the bird and took him inside the prison.

There the canary was happy again. He flew about the cage walls, ate greedily from the bird seed dishes, took a splashing bath in the bright sunshine, and sang joyously. The bars made him feel at home, and he may serve a term for life there.

Admired American Inventions.
As far back as 1876 some of the forefathers of the American people showed their keen appreciation of the importance of invention and the advantages derived by America from its encouragement. One of the Swiss commissioners said: "I am satisfied from my knowledge that no people have made in so short a time so many great inventions as the Americans, and it today machinery apparently does all the work, it nevertheless by no means reduces the workman to a machine. He uses a machine, it is true, but he is always thinking of some improvement to introduce into it, and often his thoughts lead to fine inventions or useful improvements."

Thus, the writer of all other machines said that "as regards extent of invention and ingenuity, the United States was far ahead of the rest of the world." And he pointed by its results in benefiting the public by stimulating inventors and by giving a perseveringly practical turn to their labors, the American patent law must be admitted to be the most successful.

Her View of Self.
She was a typical East side girl and though plainly dressed, was very pretty. While walking through Van Cortlandt park she heard for the first time of the game of golf and observed the golfers as she was asking her companion, a sprightly young girl, something about the game. The girl explained. "My Gawd," responded the other, "and do they walk all over these hills?" Then she observed some more players on the links in the far distance. "Do they play it away off there, too?" "Gee, yes," replied the girl. "They play it all over the place." "Well," concluded the East side girl, dismissing the subject with definite finality, "I shall never play golf."

"That's another of those nice games I'd like to learn—I don't think!"—New York Times.

Caution!
The new-day advances that come along on this machine are all controlled by Oliver. Even our own previous models—famous in their day—never had the Optional Duplex Shift.

It puts the whole control of 84 letters and characters in the fingers of the right and left hands. And it lets you write them all with only 28 keys, the least to operate of any standard typewriter made.

Thus, the writer of all other machines can immediately run the Oliver Number "9" with more speed and greater ease.

17 CENTS A DAY! Remember this brand-new Oliver "9" is the greatest value ever given in a typewriter. It has all our previous special features—visible writing, automatic spacing, 6 1/2-ounce touch—all these other new-day features.

Yet we have decided to sell it to everyone everywhere on our famous payment plan—17 cents a day. Now every user can easily afford to have the world's crack visible writer, with the famous PRINTER, that writes like print, included FREE if desired.

TODAY—Write For Full Details and be among the first to know about this marvel of writing machines. See why typists, employers, and individuals everywhere are flocking to the Oliver. Just make a postal at once. No obligation. It's a pleasure for us to tell you about it.

REXALL ORDERLIES
THE IDEAL LAXATIVE

Prominent New Orleans Druggist is Authority For This Statement

P. A. CAPDAU
who owns and operates one of the big stores in New Orleans, says:

"I am of the opinion that Rexall Orderlies are the ideal laxative for men, women and children. This opinion is based upon my knowledge of the formula and upon what my customers say about them. Through personal experience, I know they are pleasant to take, gentle in action, and give the same pleasing results when used by men, women or children."

A New Model Typewriter!

The No. 9
OLIVER
The Standard Visible Writer

BUY IT NOW!

Yes, the crowning typewriter triumph is here!

It is out—and comes years before experts expected it. For makers have striven a life-time to attain this score. And Oliver has won again, as we scored when we gave the world its first visible writing.

There is truly no other typewriter on earth like this Oliver "9." Think of touch so light that the tread of a kitten will run the keys!

CAUTION!
The new-day advances that come along on this machine are all controlled by Oliver. Even our own previous models—famous in their day—never had the Optional Duplex Shift.

It puts the whole control of 84 letters and characters in the fingers of the right and left hands. And it lets you write them all with only 28 keys, the least to operate of any standard typewriter made.

Thus, the writer of all other machines can immediately run the Oliver Number "9" with more speed and greater ease.

WARNING!
This brilliant new Oliver comes at the old-time price. It costs no more than lesser makes—now out of date when compared with this discovery.

For while the Oliver's splendid new features are costly, we have equalized the added expense to us by simplifying construction.

Resolve right now to see this great achievement before you spend a dollar for any typewriter. If you are using some other make you will want to see how much more than ours it costs.

If you are using an Oliver, it naturally follows that you want the finest model.

17 CENTS A DAY! Remember this brand-new Oliver "9" is the greatest value ever given in a typewriter. It has all our previous special features—visible writing, automatic spacing, 6 1/2-ounce touch—all these other new-day features.

Yet we have decided to sell it to everyone everywhere on our famous payment plan—17 cents a day. Now every user can easily afford to have the world's crack visible writer, with the famous PRINTER, that writes like print, included FREE if desired.

TODAY—Write For Full Details and be among the first to know about this marvel of writing machines. See why typists, employers, and individuals everywhere are flocking to the Oliver. Just make a postal at once. No obligation. It's a pleasure for us to tell you about it.

UNITED STATES TO SEE

VON PAPPEN'S PAPERS

THE BRITISH AUTHORITIES FIND EVIDENCE HE AIDED PLOTS.

London, Jan. 14.—Copies of correspondence sent from Captain Franz von Papen, recalled German military attaché at Washington, when he reached Falmouth on his way to Germany, have been turned over to the American embassy department. They show that Captain von Papen made frequent payments to persons charged with the responsibility for blowing up munitions works and bridges in the United States.

One entry shows that Captain von Papen gave $700 to Warner Horn, who was arrested in connection with the blowing up of a Canadian Pacific railway bridge at St. Croix, Me. The day before this check was issued the German embassy paid $2,000 into Captain von Papen's account.

Letters taken from Captain von Papen there is little of interest with the exception of a letter from the German consul at New Orleans condoling him on his recall from Washington and criticizing severely the attitude of the American government.

Captain von Papen's check stubs, bank books and letters from his bank, the Riggs National Bank of Washington, D. C., shows about 500 items, many of which had to do with routine expenditures. Others, however, revealed payments to various persons who have figured prominently in the activities of German agents in America.

Several large payments were made to Captain von Papen by Count von Bernstorff. Most of these were for salaries or bonuses. A number of entries on check stubs, if reproduced in facsimile, would prove that nothing in the war or illegal relations was established between the dates of such payments of criminal attempts.

British press reports evidently are based on the impression created by the publication of the letters concerning Greece, which were seized from Col. H. D. Napier, former British military attaché at Sofia. It is evident that the German military attaché never lived on money that he borrowed. Therefore the payments he received from Ambassador von Bernstorff were for expenses in connection with conducting his office.

The letters and check stubs, if reproduced in facsimile, would prove that nothing in the war or illegal relations was established between the dates of such payments of criminal attempts.

Another check stub shows that about two weeks before the explosion in Seattle on May 30, 1915, Captain von Papen sent $500 to the German consulate at Seattle. In February of 1915 he sent $1,300 to the German consulate in that city.

As an example of the size of the captain's financial operations his bank book shows that in January of 1915 he received approximately $6,400 and paid out $5,000.

Atlanta, Jan. 14.—Dr. Wilhelm Mueller, German consul in Atlanta, was in charge of the German consulate at Seattle in 1915 and it was stated at his office here today that he received money from Captain von Papen as stated in news dispatches from London. It was said, however, that the money was sent to Consul Mueller for the purpose of paying transportation charges for several German citizens from Seattle to New York.

It was said at the consulate that there was nothing unusual in the transaction. Dr. Mueller was transferred to Atlanta in June of last year, a short time after von Papen is reported to have sent him $500. The consul is confined to his bed as the result of a fall last week in which his knee was sprained.

Later an Associated Press representative was received by Dr. Mueller and the consul denied emphatically that he was in any way connected with the explosion in Seattle. Dr. Mueller said it was a common occurrence for his Seattle consulate to receive funds from the German embassy at Washington. When asked if it were not a little out of the ordinary routine for the military attaché to make these disbursements, the consul said he did not think so. He declared that he may have received other funds from von Papen, but did not recollect whether it came from

BERLIN DENIES VON PAPPEN PAID BIG SUMS

Berlin, Jan. 18.—A denial that Capt. Franz von Papen, recalled German military attaché at Washington, paid money to individuals in the United States in connection with attempts to blow up munitions factories or bridges, was made today by the semi-official Overseas News Agency.

The agency's statement follows: "British press reports state that the former German military attaché at Washington, Capt. von Papen, had in his possession letters and bank books, seized by the British at Falmouth, which contain evidence that he paid money to persons connected with explosions in munitions factories in the United States and to other criminals. The Overseas News Agency hears from competent authorities that these assertions are not correct."

"Capt. von Papen's letters and bank books, which were seized in violation of the safe conduct guarantee to him, are of a purely personal character or have to do with usual business affairs. Capt. von Papen never paid money to persons connected with attempts or alleged attempts against munitions plants, bridges or any other American property. No check ever was paid to Werner Horn, who is accused of an attempt to blow up a Canadian Railway bridge."

"It is evident that the German military attaché never lived on money that he borrowed. Therefore the payments he received from Ambassador von Bernstorff were for expenses in connection with conducting his office. The letters and check stubs, if reproduced in facsimile, would prove that nothing in the war or illegal relations was established between the dates of such payments of criminal attempts."

CONGRESSMAN FAVORS POSTAL OWNERSHIP

Washington, Jan. 16.—"Our postoffice department, in trying to grapple with the needs of the American people in internal and international communication is like a vast hand with only one good finger, two crippled ones, and two other fingers missing!"

Thus Congressman David J. Lewis, "Parcel Post Dave," as his colleagues in the house call him, expressed the need for government ownership of postal facilities. He said, "We are trying to do our work of communication with a crippled hand. Foreign governments use a hand with five whole fingers to grasp their subject of communications."

"Our postoffice has only one good finger, the letter mail; it has two crippled ones, parcel post and postal savings, neither of which has been developed into its true usefulness—are still in embryo, so to speak; and its two missing fingers are the telegraph-telephone services."

"People do not realize that the postal establishment instead of being an inefficient organization has been developed into its true usefulness—are still in embryo, so to speak; and its two missing fingers are the telegraph-telephone services."

CITIZENS WILL MEET TO CONSIDER BONDS

Whether or not Statesboro is to have a new high school and street paving, is to be decided by the citizens in a mass meeting to be held one week from this evening. The call for such meeting has been issued by the mayor and will be seen in this issue.

Thus the matter is gradually growing to a definite conclusion. Just how it will terminate cannot now be foretold. It seems to be certain that some new arrangement must be made for school facilities. The added to from time to time, is now inadequate to accommodate all the pupils who desire admittance. Next year conditions will naturally be worse unless plans are made in advance.

Street paving, too, seems to be demanded. It must come sooner or later. The question is to decide whether both these improvements shall be procured; if only one, which one. Sentiment is not all one way on the subject of these improvements. Of course, the men who have to bear the burden of taxation are always cautious about contracting debts. Even the little taxpayer feels the burden in proportion as great as the big one. Naturally, then, some will say "go slow." Those most interested, however, are advising a forward movement.

One plan suggested is that the auditorium of the school building be partitioned into rooms for the classes instead of erecting new buildings. This is not altogether a bad idea. It would mean, however, that the city would be without auditorium facilities. This would bring about another problem. If this is done, an auditorium will need to be built. Which, then, shall we have, a new high school or a separate auditorium? Let the people consider these things and make their answer next Thursday evening when they meet for that purpose.

THE BLIND SENATOR FROM OKLAHOMA ONE OF THE MARVELS OF THE DAY.

All arrangements have been closed for the Southern Chautauqua and Artist Festival which will be presented here in February, twenty-first to twenty-fourth, inclusive, under the auspices of a committee of leading citizens. The program bids fair to equal anything given in the state, is evidenced by the attractions. The most unique character in the United States Senate today, and the senator who is invariably pointed out to gallery visitors, is the blind senator from the young state of Oklahoma.

Nor is Senator Gore remarkable chiefly because he is blind. He is conceded to be one of the most brilliant and eloquent senators in the upper house, whose speeches are listened to with attraction and enthusiasm, and who has been called the "blind orator" by the galleries, but by the staid and dignified senators on the floor as well.

When in action, no spectator unacquainted with the fact, would suspect him of blindness. He has a trick of holding a piece of paper in his hands and occasionally turning towards it as though consulting notes, which make the uninitiated think he is reading it. He is an earnest, energetic speaker, and with a resonant voice which makes it heard in all parts of the senate chamber, and delivery emphasized by wild shaking of the head, which seriously muzzes up his hair.

He has another trick. Always when speaking, he has a large book on the table in front of him. Upon this he places his hand, and with the other he gesticulates. The blind senator has to have everything read to him. His wife and his secretary do for him and it is no easy job. He listens with close attention, and when a point is reached upon which he desires further enlightenment, he insists that other books of reference shall be found and that point elucidated before proceeding further. The reading covers a wide range of subjects and his mind would seem to be in the habit of taking the floor to make a speech, he is as well equipped for the debate as other men who possess all their senses.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Democrats are anxious to get to work today to speed up consideration of the legislative program. This step was decided upon at a dinner given by Secretary McAdoo last night to the leaders, including Speaker Clark and the chairmen of important committees.

In addition to agreeing upon plans for accelerating the legislative work, ways and means of raising revenue were discussed. Attention was called to the slow progress being made in disposing of important business.

SOUTHERN CHAUTAUQUA TO PRESENT SENATOR GORE

All arrangements have been closed for the Southern Chautauqua and Artist Festival which will be presented here in February, twenty-first to twenty-fourth, inclusive, under the auspices of a committee of leading citizens. The program bids fair to equal anything given in the state, is evidenced by the attractions. The most unique character in the United States Senate today, and the senator who is invariably pointed out to gallery visitors, is the blind senator from the young state of Oklahoma.

Nor is Senator Gore remarkable chiefly because he is blind. He is conceded to be one of the most brilliant and eloquent senators in the upper house, whose speeches are listened to with attraction and enthusiasm, and who has been called the "blind orator" by the galleries, but by the staid and dignified senators on the floor as well.

When in action, no spectator unacquainted with the fact, would suspect him of blindness. He has a trick of holding a piece of paper in his hands and occasionally turning towards it as though consulting notes, which make the uninitiated think he is reading it. He is an earnest, energetic speaker, and with a resonant voice which makes it heard in all parts of the senate chamber, and delivery emphasized by wild shaking of the head, which seriously muzzes up his hair.

He has another trick. Always when speaking, he has a large book on the table in front of him. Upon this he places his hand, and with the other he gesticulates. The blind senator has to have everything read to him. His wife and his secretary do for him and it is no easy job. He listens with close attention, and when a point is reached upon which he desires further enlightenment, he insists that other books of reference shall be found and that point elucidated before proceeding further. The reading covers a wide range of subjects and his mind would seem to be in the habit of taking the floor to make a speech, he is as well equipped for the debate as other men who possess all their senses.
